What's Your Plan?

When warm weather returns, property owners everywhere start thinking about making changes to their landscapes. If you're one of them, we can't over-emphasize the importance of developing a careful plan before getting started.

The temptation to rush into new plant installation can be very strong, but if you don't think ahead, you may end up dissatisfied down the road. As you develop your landscaping plan, you should ask yourself the following basic questions:

1. WHAT ARE MY NEEDS?

Keep in mind that a successful landscape is both practical and beautiful. So, rather than just picking out attractive plants, consider what purposes you want your new landscape to serve. Do you need an outdoor kitchen area? A play space for children? A vegetable garden? A private spot that blocks the neighboring property from view? Consult family members to ensure that everybody's needs are represented in your plan.

2. WHAT IS MY BUDGET?

If your cash flow is limited, it might make sense to tackle just one area at a time, completing your landscaping project over the space of several years as time and money allow. For example, you may want to focus on public and entrance areas this year, then address your outdoor living or entertainment area next year. Determining your specific needs and priorities upfront will help you decide where to start.

3. HOW MUCH SPACE DO I HAVE?

Be sure that each area has enough space for its intended purpose and keep the mature size of a tree or shrub in mind when deciding where you want to plant it. Without enough room to grow, that gorgeous ornamental you have in mind could cause some major maintenance headaches in the future.

Of course, there's more to consider beyond these basic points, but a little forethought in these areas will go a long way toward ensuring that you're happy with the end results. It's also a good idea to meet with a professional landscape architect who can help you develop a comprehensive plan that meets your specific needs and budget.

KEY POINTS

- Try not to rush into new landscaping projects.
- Remember that good landscapes are both practical and beautiful.

Benefits of Commercial Landscapes

Businesses are more successful when they provide clients and employees with landscaped areas around buildings as well as plants inside buildings. Here are some of the economic benefits of commercial landscapes:

1. A study found 7% higher rental rates for commercial offices having high-quality landscapes.
2. Shoppers claim they will spend 9% to 12% more for goods and services in central business districts that have high quality tree canopies.
3. Shoppers indicate they will travel a greater distance and a longer time to visit a district with a high-quality tree canopy and spend more time there once they arrive.
4. Companies that provide their employees with interactions with nature also benefit. Research conducted showed that workers who could view nature from their desks had much better job and life satisfaction and better health.

We'll Do Your Project Right

A landscape project is exciting. Each time we start a job, we share the homeowner's sense of anticipation. Soon the property is forever changed - more livable, more beautiful.

We sometimes hear from property owners about bad experiences with other companies. They tell us of poor planning, unfinished construction, unhealthy or poorly chosen plantings, and even lack of communication, consideration or courtesy.

We won't disappoint you. Because our extensive experience and training go into every project, yours will turn out right. And because we enjoy what we do and the people we work for, every member of our company will meet your expectations for courtesy and professionalism.
